Conference Reimbursement Scholarship Information and Application

Introduction

The Pediatric Endocrinology Nursing Society (PENS) Conference Reimbursement Scholarship exists to enable pediatric endocrine nurses to advance their knowledge in the areas of endocrine and growth disorders, endocrine nursing research and current issues in pediatric endocrinology nursing.

Scholarship recipients can use these funds for travel, lodging and registration expenses related to the PENS conference. Meals are not reimbursed. Recipients are responsible for making all their own travel, lodging and registration arrangements.

Eligibility

PENS grants up to twelve Conference Reimbursement Scholarships (CRS) for attendance at the PENS conference. Scholarships are divided equally between two types of submissions: clinical exemplars and poster abstracts. More scholarships may be given in one category if there are fewer than six eligible submissions in the other category. Applicants MUST be active PENS members. Applications must include either a clinical exemplar for possible publication OR an accepted poster abstract for presentation at the PENS conference. All PENS members who have submitted an accepted poster abstract are eligible to apply for the CRS. Special consideration will be given to first time poster presenters. Those choosing to submit in the poster abstract category must present their poster at the PENS conference of the year awarded.

Anyone receiving funds from PENS to attend the conference is NOT eligible for the CRS. This includes, but may not be limited to, members of the current Board of Directors, PENS Committee Chairs and PENS speakers. Applicants will not be reimbursed for expenses for which they receive funding from their employer or other sources.

Application

To apply for the PENS Conference Reimbursement Scholarship, prepare a packet that includes the following materials:

1. Completed application form (see attached document).
2. 2-4 page clinical exemplar (additional information below) OR copy of your poster abstract accepted by the PENS Research Committee.
3. Letter from your employer clearly stating the amount of funding received from employer to attend conference.

Submit the application materials to the PENS Executive Office by submitting an email to pens@kellencompany.com or by mailing to the PENS Executive Office. The materials must be received by March 1.

Selection

Applications will be reviewed and rated by an appointed task force. Scholarship recipients will be notified by March 15. Recipients will receive up to $1000. Recipients will be asked to provide a completed W-9. If you have any questions about this program or the application process, contact the PENS Executive Office at (913) 222-8657.

What is a clinical exemplar?

The clinical exemplar is a narrative account of a clinical experience that has affected your pediatric endocrinology nursing practice. As nurses we participate in absolutely extraordinary experiences every day, even though we may only see what we do as ordinary and part of the job. These special experiences, or “exemplars”--as defined by Patricia Benner--are situations where the nurse has learned something about his/her practice or made a significant contribution to a patient’s or family’s well-being.

How are clinical exemplars different from case studies or essays?

- An essay is concept-based, and presents an opinion or analysis.
- A case study examines the component parts of a patient’s illness and care.
- A clinical exemplar paints the whole picture, using a narrative approach.
- A clinical exemplar is a story rich in emotional content and detail, rather than hard data such as test procedures and results.
- A clinical exemplar depicts a situation in which the nurse has learned something about his/her practice. They do not depict research directed at solving a problem or methodical analysis of a particular case.

How do I write a clinical exemplar?

Use a step-by-step approach in describing the clinical scenario. Keep these 5 points in mind:

- What were your intentions during the event?
- What were you feeling?
- What were you thinking?
- What conclusions did you reach as a result of this experience?
- How has the experience affected you?

What should a clinical exemplar look like?

- Your clinical exemplar should generally be written in the first person and the past tense--just as if you are telling a story.
- Paint a picture of your clinical experience so that the reader can actually visualize and experience your situation. Remember: an exemplar is a story, not a case study.
- Exemplars should be typed, 12pt font, double-spaced, 2-4 pages in length.
